

TRAVEL

The best restaurants in Notting Hill, according to a local

David Cotsworth

The Princess Royal

Cuisine: Mediterranean seafood made with British produce

Price: £££

Nearest Tube: Royal Oak, or Bayswater

Location: Bayswater

The Princess Royal is the latest from chef Ben Tish, formerly of Fitzrovia's Norma. Whilst the latter serves up a Moorish-Sicilian melange; here, Tish has paired up with Georgia Pearman, director of Cubitt House, the mini-chain of half a dozen rather fancy London pubs scattered through Marylebone, Mayfair and Chelsea, to deliver a menu of Mediterranean seafood made with British produce. There's also a large central raw bar to be indulged in.

It's filled with what our Acting Features Editor Thomas Barrie describes as "a visibly West London crowd. Beautiful dogs lie at people's feet, and everyone looks a little like Claudia Winkleman, or maybe her cousin." Outside, there's a spacious terrace and a garden by Jinny Blom, making it a perfect summer spot for long lunches and slow pints alike.

Read the full review of The Princess Royal here / Cubitthouse.co.uk/the-princess-royal