The Orange, Belgravia

The newly revamped and rather gorgeous-looking pub, The Orange, is now decked out almost head-to-toe in (you guessed it) orange-hued soft plump banquette seating with light stuccoed walls and smooth polished wooden tables as a nod to the old country inn-style furnishings. Comfortingly beautiful, this place is the perfect spot for catch ups with mates or dates and the food is even better than the said interiors with an expanded bar area spanning the entire ground floor complete with a dedicated charcuterie station and a sizzling wood-fired pizza oven. Leading the charge in the kitchen is Head Chef Tom Raciborsk who has joined forces with Ben Tish to craft a menu that blends Mediterranean flair with reinvented pub classics. From succulent Angus Ribeye to tantalising roast squid with Za'tar, every dish reflects Ben's innovative approach and commitment to seasonal, flavour-packed fare. And let's not forget the pizzas, topped with a delightful array of ingredients that whisk you away from rainy London to the Med. The Orange, Belgravia
